Tips for success: There are many resources available to you to help you succeed in this course. The first and most obvious is to be in class. Outlines for notes are available online on the course website. It would be a good idea to print out and bring these outlines to class. The book was custom made for this course at this university and is also a great tool. Reading through the explanations and working through the example problems will be a big help.

The office hours that I give above are dedicated to helping you. You can stop by any time during those hours without having to actually set up a time with me. If I ever will be missing an office hour, I will let you know. If it happens that you want to meet with me but cannot make any of these times, let me know through email and I will try to work with you to find a time good for both of us. I am also available for questions through email. However, in an effort to get you to start on your homework before the night before it's due, I will not be responding to emailed homework questions I receive after 9pm the night homework is due (note that most homework is due by midnight on Sundays).

Also make use of The Study, located in the basement of the Young Library. Tutors are available on Sundays 6pm-10pm and Monday-Thursday 3pm-10pm.
