

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Math Movie of the Month
presents:

Steve Martin

(Yes, the Steve Martin)

and Bob Osserman

in

Funny numbers

“Author and actor Steve Martin chatted with mathematician Robert Osserman of the Mathematical Sciences Research Institute (MSRI) in Berkeley on December 15, 2002 at San Francisco’s Herbst Theatre. They discussed literature and mathematics, why two banjos are like one slide rule, and whether we really know what pi is. Steve Martin read and enacted excerpts from his works, reminisced about his work for the Smothers Brothers, and discussed the authors who influenced him. The hilarity of this event as it spins out of control has to be seen to be believed!” — 81 min

Friday September 12th, 2008
7:30pm in Classroom Building 118

For more information see: www.ms.uky.edu/~movies